

Consultancy

Whether you have a small office / home office (SoHo) or a larger corporate network, DMGi can provide you with advice and action for your IT system's needs.

We can help you to revise and renovate ageing networks and systems, help update your security policies and procedures, while all the time being able to translate what we are actually doing into non-technical talk.

Many smaller companies can't afford to employ full time IT staff and so may have systems that are no longer configured optimally. These systems may have the potential to be more productive and less time consuming to maintain after a proper overhaul. We can offer ad-hoc consultancy or retainer work to supply you with just a few hours of support a week, or whatever is most appropriate for your needs. With 45 years combined IT corporate experience we can provide consultancy services in nearly every division of the IT world, be it Windows or Linux.
